Excerpt: . . . 11 grading the skills of local doctors to improve the quality of health services they provide. Success in improving the quality rural health services would also have the effect of building greater confidence in the rural health system, and increasing the utilization of available services. United States NGOs can help expand Tibetan community access to rural credit for income generating purposes. My NGO is currently providing small loans to about 1, 000 Tibetan families. We find that after 4 years we have about a 95 percent pay back on loans. This is a payback rate substantially higher than the payback in the formal banking system catering more to the urban commercial sector. We also believe that United States NGOs can provide valuable technical and financial support to Tibetan entrepreneurs and enterprises in rural and urban areas. So there are a range of practical, economic, and social development initiatives...
