Excerpt from Fast-Day Sermon: Delivered Before the United Congregational and Baptist Societies I, as giving expression to your feelings, would rejoice that this prosperous scene, for a brief interregnum interrupted, is to be continued yes, more than this, there are to be added touches of beauty by the Great Limner s hand. The fate of civilization, of humanity, of religion, were all involved in the preservation of the Union. Not only were the hopes and liberties of the American nation at stake, but those of all mankind. Here was the question being settled - whether men were capable of self-government, and yet be subject to government. The question was being decided whether government was a boon to the people, or a boon granted by the people; whether the people were made for the government, or the government for the people. To state the issue tersely, and all comprehensively - whether man is man however low in the social scale, entrusted by God with destinies and responsibilities, both for this world, and the world to come, for the fulfilment of which the law of his nature teaches him there shall be no interference on the part of the government, or any class with select privileges, or the masses of the people.
