Take the general law, under which the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company of Boston, Mass., transacts its business. It is, that there can be no forfeiture of a policy until the exhaustion of the proportion of the profits of the business to which the policy-holder is entitled. By the table of the office, that is in the hands of the public, a man who has made two payments of premium has 1 year and 228 days, grace allowed him for the third payment; and a man who has made ten payments, has 8 years and 272 days, grace allowed him for the eleventh payment. The office is the staunchest in the United States: as sound as the best of our own life offices. A second illustration. The street where I reside has a building history; the man who used to live at the corner...
