

Drift Ice (Paperback)

By Jennifer Atkinson

Etruscan Press, United States, 2008. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book. Drift Ice is a collection of poetry from a new Etruscan author, Jennifer Atkinson. The poems in Drift Ice view the natural world through a lens of ecological and spiritual concerns. They focus especially on Prince William Sound in Alaska fifteen years after the Exxon-Valdez oil spill, Long Island Sound at the estuarial mouth of the Connecticut River, and Sri Lanka before (and, in one poem, after) the tsunami. The poems address the myth of a once pristine wilderness and the indifferent, ever-changing nature of nature and our human place in it, as they also investigate the flexibility and lambency of lyric form. Jennifer Atkinson is the author of two collections of poetry-The Dogwood Tree, which won the University of Alabama Poetry Prize, and The Drowned City, winner of the Samuel French Morse Prize. Her poetry and nonfiction can be seen in many leading journals and have been honored with Pushcart Prizes. She taught in Nepal and Japan and at the University of Iowa and Washington University before joining the faculty of George Mason University.

READ ONLINE
[ 1.34 MB ]

Reviews

This book might be really worth a read, and superior to other. This really is for all who statte there had not been a really worth studying. I am just happy to tell you that this is basically the very best pdf i actually have read through during my very own lifestyle and may be he best ebook for actually.

-- Elnora Ruecker

Merely no phrases to describe. It really is rally intriguing throgh reading time. I am happy to tell you that this is basically the greatest book i have go through in my own lifestyle and might be he greatest book for ever.

-- Kattie Wunsch