COMPASSIONATE JUDAISM: THE LIFE AND THOUGHT OF SAMUEL DAVID LUZZATTO (PAPERBACK)

Createspace Independent Publishing Platform, 2017. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . In his theological and philosophical analysis of the ideals of Samuel David Luzzatto, Marc Gopin critically examines the process that brought Luzzatto to his revolutionary conclusions about the compassionate nature of Judaism. Unlike his contemporaries, Luzzatto wasn't content with the division of secular Enlightenment thinking and traditional religious values. He believed that these schools of thought and their moral implications could synergize; in fact, he found a basis for honoring universal moral commitments within the construct of rabbinical Judaism. Learn how Luzzatto reconciled his passion for scientific reasoning, enlightened thought, and universal humanitarianism with his staunch religious conviction. The process of reaching such an unprecedented marriage of beliefs is uncovered by Gopin's study. He explores the influence of moral sense theory, a precursor to modern scientific approaches to ethics, on Luzzatto's premises. Luzzatto believed that compassion, not tribalism, was the medium by which we all might learn to live in peace. In a modern world plagued by hatred, destruction, and war, it is sometimes necessary to look to the past for a way to move forward. Marc Gopin in Compassionate Judaism has brought to American public awareness the passionate life and work of the Jewish religious and Enlightenment thinker, Samuel David Luzzatto, as a model of the possibility and vital importance of integrating and reconciling the life of traditional faith with a commitment to both the universal value of compassion toward all and to a respect for empirical and scientific inquiry and outlook. This book serves as the underlying bedrock and spring of Gopin's own passionate commitment and, I must say also, noble life devoted to bringing different and opposing religious figures and communities together into compassionate...
