Brighton Publishing LLC. Paperback. Condition: New. 196 pages. Dimensions: 8.5in. x 5.5in. x 0.5in. Life seemed perfect for Jean. She had a wonderful, twenty-four-year marriage to her soul mate—a man who filled her life with fun, romance, and strength. Their lives were fueled by moments they cherished—motorcycle rides, cruises, festivals, and enjoyable dinners. Then the unthinkable happened. A stormy night would bring a call for Bill to come into work. Later, when the second call came, Jean's heart seemed to stop. Fear struck deep and fast and her drive to the hospital was filled with dreadful thoughts. Jean's husband, Bill, an electrical company employee, was severely burned in an on-the-job accident. Bill's family clung to hope while medical experts treated him at a local burn center. But after a valiant, 19-day fight, Bill eventually succumbed to his wounds. Follow Jean as she struggles to cope with the hospitalization—then the death—of her best friend, lover, and life partner. And remembering can be so painful. . . Eventually, Jean turned to alcohol to provide a brief respite from her overwhelming heartache and loss. As her depression continued its downward spiral, suicidal thoughts and feelings of hopelessness often overtook her—leading to a life-threatening accident. With the help of a team of mental health professionals and clergymen, Jean would finally seek out answers to the...
