Would you like to work with state-of-the-art technology? Are you interested in a profession in a skyrocketing segment of the allied healthcare field? These attractive features and many more, characterize the burgeoning specialty of Cardiovascular Technology. Employment of CVTs is expected to increase by a whopping 25 percent within the next decade. A trio of factors account for this career's upward trajectory, two of which are related to the aging population: the Baby Boom generation, 76 million strong, started turning 60 in 2007. People are living longer, thanks to continual advances in healthcare and medicine. The third factor is distressing: Americans, generally, do not take good care of their own health. Heart disease is a phenomenon of the modern age. In pre-industrial societies, most people's livelihoods consisted of manual labor. Domestic life involved vigorous activity by men, women, and even children. Before people had access to manufactured products and the conveniences of modern life, they were largely self-sufficient. American pioneers cut down trees for firewood, built their own and their neighbors' houses, repaired their own roofs, hunted for food, drew water from the well, churned milk into butter, harvested crops, sheared sheep, slaughtered their own livestock, played stickball and hopscotch, and walked to school. Tobacco and sugar were luxuries for most people, who had little discretionary spending money and lived far from the general store, if there was one. Food was plentiful at harvest time, but scarce in the winter. Today, our homes are heated and cooled with the flick of a switch. Water flows through our taps, our food comes from the supermarket, and high-tech entertainment devices have replaced physical...
