Repeated field taking up to February, 1903, revealed only some slight improvement. My study of glaucoma having led me to believe that uncorrected errors of refraction are a very important element in the production of that disease, I was much interested in the views of Professor Schoen of Leipzig, published in the Ophthalmic Record, of October, 1902. He says: It has been shown by microscopic examination that forty eyes which had been examined in the live subject and found to have the so-called physiological excavation, had acquired it during the life time. This result was confirmed by statistical research and by the fact that new born children, with a few exceptions, do not exhibit excavation. I was able to examine microscopically fifteen eyes which I had previously examined in the living subject. Besides the beginning of the excavation, I discovered anatomical...
