Not illustrated. 1912 Excerpt: .School in the Horace Mann School building this year was 78. Of this number, 75 are reported as doing good work. Principals report that 65 of these children entered the public schools this fall, and that 45 were graded one year ahead of what they would have been but for their summer, s work. Only three of these have failed to maintain themselves. In other words, in return for the use of a part of this building for seven weeks, the city received the equivalent of a year s work for one teacher. The newest organization is the Everett Grammar School Athletic League with a member of the School Board on its Executive Committee. A part of the work of the grade associations this year has been to select for special drill in each grade a list of the words the children need to use frequently but often misspell. School work began-a little more promptly last fall because the principals and teachers met on the Thursday and Friday before the opening day in order to plan their work and attend to necessary details. Three classes have had 100 per cent in attendance for a month: Miss Copeland, s seventh grade at the Horace Maun and Miss James, second grade at the Winthrop for September, and Mr. Bryant, s chemistry class in the Evening School for October. An effort has been made to unify the work in penmanship by having Mr. Hayward, head of the...
