Excerpt from Masmid: June, 1932 Nearly a score of years ago - seventeen to be exact - the authorities and leaders of our Yeshiva were confronted with the difficult problem of what to do with the boys who were completing their elementary school studies and would soon be ready for high school work. Two courses were Open to the Directors. One was to permit the boys to proceed to the public high schools to pursue their secular studies, thereby sacrificing the rich background of Jewish learning which was to serve as the basis for the further understanding and appreciation of the history and literature, the laws and customs of our people and the knowledge of the Holy Torah. The other alternative was to found a secondary school as part of the Yeshiva. Where the boys could continue. Under one roof The subjects of the high school curriculum without discontinuing or interrupting. Their Talmudic and Jewish studies in the Yeshiva proper or in the Teachers Institute.
