Excerpt from Review of Proposed Legislation to Permit Address List Sharing by the Census Bureau: Hearing Before the Subcommittee on Census, Statistics and Postal Personnel of the Committee on Post Office and Civil Service, House of Representatives, One Hundred Third Congress, Second Session, July 21, 1994 The sub-committee met, pursuant to call, at 10 a.m., in room 311, Cannon House Office Building, Hon. Thomas C. Sawyer (chairman of the subcommittee) presiding. Members present: Representatives Sawyer and Petri. Mr. Sawyer. This morning we are dealing with some of the more specific aspects of preparation for the 2000 census. The topic of our hearing is to consider whether Congress needs to amend any laws to facilitate the sharing of address information that might contribute to making a more accurate census list. That list, of course, is fundamental to any mail-based census effort. I think it almost goes without saying that it has long been settled in law that any information that the Census Bureau compiles is strictly confidential. That has been pivotal in the matter of public confidence, where we are asking Americans to bring what they feel is often sensitive information about themselves for a broad public purpose. Let me first offer just a little bit of background. Since the Census Bureau moved to a mail-based architecture in 1960, it has assembled a national address list from a variety of sources, including private companies and local governments, and then finally the hard work of canvassing neighborhoods. That process is often tedious and costly and for obvious reasons often far from error free. What may be toughest about it though is it always starts from scratch for each census. I think a lot...
